ANNA SMITH,

tense suffering. Many have for years vainly sought relief from this disabling disease, and are to-day worse off than ever. Rheumatism is a blood disease, and Swift's Specific is the only cure, because it is the only remedy which can reach such deep-seated diseases. A few years ago I was taken with inflammatory Rheumatism, which became so intense that I was for weeks unable to walk. I tried several prominent physi-cians and took their treatment faithfully, but was unable to get the slight est relief. In fact, my condition seemed to grov worse, the disease sprea over my entire body, and from November to March I suffered agony. I tried many patent medicines, but none relieved me. Upon the ad vice of a friend I decided to try s. S. S. Before allowing me to take it, however, my guardian, who was a chemist, analyzed the remedy, and pronounced it free of potash or mercury. I felt so much better after taking two bottles, that I continued the remedy, and in two months I was cured completely. The cure was permanent, for I have never since had a touch of Rheumatism though many times exposed to damp and cold weather.

A SIMPLE LITTLE FROCK YOKE AND BERTHA.

dren that the ingenuity of modistes is con-stantly taxed to supply the demand for new ideas in these pretty little frocks. A narrow trated which was presented in The Delineato of current issue. The dress is made of ging-ham and daintly trimmed with embroidered the yoke impart a fanciful effect, their ends being oddly shaped to form tabs that flare at the front and back below the point of the yoke. A contrasting fabric could be intro-duced in the frock very attractively, the yoke and wristbands completing the bishop sleeves offering an excuse for its use. The farmer who sends his dull hand or careless boy to do his plowing com mits a very serious mistake, for good plowing lies at the very foundation of good farming. In short, the art of plowing is too much neglected.

While dairy farms may not give us arge yearly yields in money as those devoted to grain, they are worked at a much less expense in labor and tools and give as large clear income; and then the land is the gainer all the time.

Throw the coal ashes on the chicken house floor, for they are absorbent, and will keep the air pure. Baware of wood ashes, as the alkali frees the ammonis in the droppings and makes matters worse than they would be without the

One really good cow will furnish as much milk as two ordinary ones, while the one will cost but half as much as the two for keeping. In the latter case the profit all goes in keeping the extra ARMSTRONG, cow. If we would prosper we must keep our wits awake.

"Quaker Salt,"-The Best. A dry room, where they are free from freezing, is the proper place to stow away potatoes and other root crops. I you have any other place at all suitable, do not store them in the cellar; they need perfect dryness to prevent rot, and this is not often attainable in the house

After fruiting the roots of plants they should be nursed back into vigorous life by cutting out all old and surplu growth; cultivate it thoroughly and give a good dressing of fine manure or wood ashes. This best prepares them for resisting the cold Northern winters, and stimulates them for work in the early springs of the South. Every hour the soil is left uncovered it is losing a portion of its nitrogen. Its humus is being broken down and disintegrated, and the mineral plant food held in it is being washed deep into the soil or dissolved and washed entirely away by the floods. The longer a soil Bellefontaine, o has been covered by a free and ungathered growth the the more power has i acquired to produce crops.

> If the soil is moist and the weather easonable, by far the beat time to set out strawberries is in the fall. They have a longer time to establish themselves; they do not get weedy, if the ground has been properly cultivated before, and there are no weeds to fight for the first two or three months; there is a part crop of berries the first spring; if any plants are missing they can be replaced in the spring. Plants come a little higher in the fall because nurserynen do not like to disturb their beds at that time, but this extra charge is soon made up in the earlier yield.

General prosperity depends absolutely ipon agricultural prosperity. The largest market for the products of the farm and the manufactory is undeniably the home market, while the export trade Any in the City is the regulator-the balance wheels for domestic scales. It is of the utmost interest to both the farmer and the manufacturer that our trade with other coun tries be kept growing, for only by this means will these classes, which comprise more than half the population, have increasing power to buy the country's manufacturers. Our agricultural imports are comparatively quite small in quantity.

Why are oats preferred to corn as feed for horses? It is never the object to fatten a horse for market, though it should be in excellent condition at all times. Oats contain more protein than corn, and starch, but oats contain fully se much oil (or fat) as corn, about 4 per cent, but the proportion of oil is too small to render either grain unfit for horses. It is the starch in the corn that produces fat on an animal. Corn contains nearly 63 per cent of starch and oats about 45 per cent. Having more protein than corn, and less starch, oats are therefore more suitable for horses. Another point in favor of oats is the mineral matter, oats containing about ST. LOUIS. PHILADELPIA.
